To Whom It May Concern:

Greetings from Napa, California!

In going through some old photos that we inherited from my parents and grandparents, I found the enclosed photo. It is not marked in any way, but with a little sleuthing by posting it on Facebook (really!), it is fairly clear that the location is Red Bank, NJ. The “clues” were the delivery truck from a company in New Jersey, “Atlantic Appliance Store” (on the left) and “Clayton and Magee” (also on the left).

My grandparents, Charles and Bertha Parmentier, lived in Lakewood and that is where my mother, Jeanne, grew up. There were also other family members, last name Mohr, who lived in the area as well.

Rather than just throw this photo away, I am passing it on to you for your files. It’s fun to see the “old” days!

All the best,
