Mary's update (email from February 11, 2025):

- Now: We have joined the Patchwork for Wildlife initiative, which started in Lake Como and has spread to include Belmar and Point Pleasant.
- Red Bank Approach:
  - We are fortunate to have a starter habitat garden on West Westside Street. This will be augmented and used as a teaching garden with this initiative.
  - Six "starter homes" will be identified near this garden to provide additional examples of what is good practice (previous driveways, native shade trees, leaf mulch, etc.)

My activities to date

- Submitted for a $500 grant at the NPSNJ Native Plant Society of New Jersey
- I met with the executive director of Monmouth NPSNJ, Kim Rowe, and she has agreed to provide members to partner with us at events. Provide literature, etc. May also give presentations
- I met with Mayor Portman, Kate Triggiano, the Deputy Mayor, and Borough Administrator, Jim Gant. I described our initiative and requested each city council member plant one new native plant in their yard as a leadership step that we can use in communications. He agreed. They were very excited about the award approach and the ability to track progress with Jon's tools.

- Met with the Environmental Commission. Their Leaf Blower initiative, Shade Tree Initiative, and probably others are a perfect fit for the broader scope of our project. A partnership here is important. I will be working with Jenna Leder, Master Gardener. She will ensure we have a native plant table at the Middle School Earth Day event on April 10. I also requested each member of the EC to plant one new native plant in their yard, and I believe they were in agreement.
- I met with Patty Whyte, a Master Gardener and the current caretaker of Westside Garden. She is thrilled with our plans for the garden and she is thinking of hosting a monthly topic at the garden.
- Jon and I walked West Westside Avenue and identified 6 "starter" homes we could use for education in addition to the garden. We will follow up on homeowners' interest in letting us highlight their eco-friendly example(s). I note several Certified Wildlife Habitat homes in this area and my area of town that we could look into.
